

Abstract

Method for producing cohesive and adhesive acrylate pressure-sensitive adhesive substances in which polyacrylates having radical forming functional groups are activated at increased temperatures, and side chains of defined length are formed in a nitroxide-controlled polymerization.